

Terms of Service

Advisely, An Education Support Application

Big Muscle Boys

Sam Elliott, Jens Hansen, Connor Langlois, Eli Legere, Eric Schessler, Spencer Ward

COS 420 UMaine Spring 2019

Professor: Sepideh Ghanavati

Terms of Service

Last updated: Friday May 3rd, 2019

Conditions of Use

Advisely is provided AS IS and, other than the guarantees outlined below, developers provide no warranties. By registering for an account and making use of the functionality of the website users are indicating that they agree to all terms of services outlined in this document.

Privacy Policy

Information Collection and Use

We (The developers of Advisely) are the sole owners and users of the information collected when you interact with the site. Data will not be shared, sold, or collected for any other purpose than to enable the functionality of the application. The website will only collect data which you voluntarily provide and will not collect any data without your explicit consent.

Security

All data is transferred using the https protocol for security. Username and passwords are handled by Google's OAuth and not stored locally in our system (<https://tools.ietf.org/html/rfc6749>). See the OAuth security policy for more information on how your information is protected. All additional data is stored in Google's Firebase which currently meets the standards of all modern security regulations. More information on Firebase's security policy can be found here: <https://firebase.google.com/support/privacy>.

User Control Over Information

At any time you may contact the developers of Advisely and request all data that the system currently has stored on your account. Additionally Advisely will remove any personal data collected on users if requested, provided they can verify the information is their own.

Copyright

Advisely is an open source project in the public domain. All services are provided free of charge to users. Any and all information gained by using the system is the property of the user and may be used at their discretion.

Contact

All contact between users and developers will occur digitally. To contact the developers of Advisely please send an email to advisely-support@googlegroups.com. Advisely will at no point contact users without first receiving an email from said user. Information may periodically be displayed on the website to inform users of changes to the system.

User Account

Upon creating an account on Advisely.com users take responsibility for maintaining the confidentiality of their username and password. Advisely.com is not responsible for any actions that occur on an account by a user that accessed the site using valid login credentials. Advisely reserves the rights to terminate or alter any account on their platform at anytime.